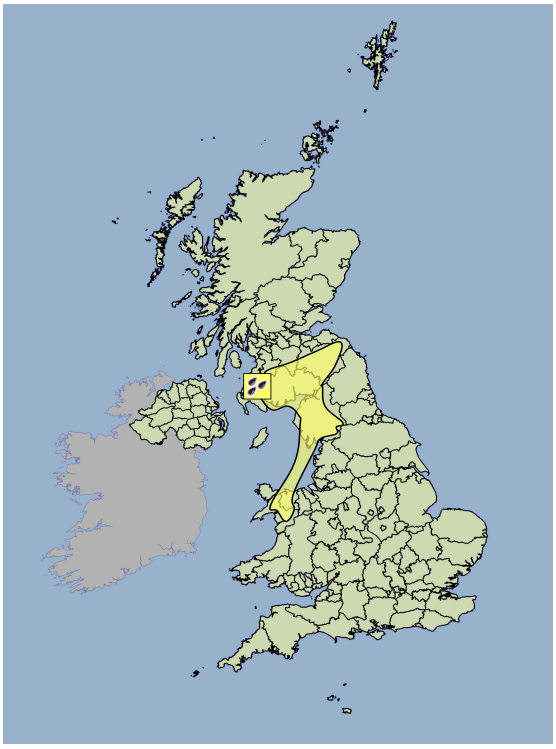
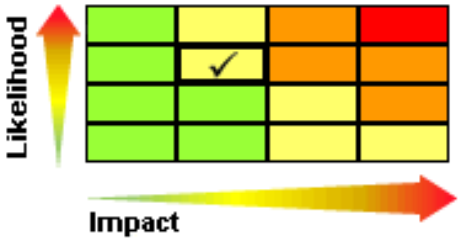
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A slow-moving cold front is bringing a band of rain across the area, with moisture-laden air releasing large amounts of rain where strong winds hit rising ground. More than 80 mm are expected over some hill tops, with 30-40 mm more widely.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 10:45 on Sun, 23rd Feb 2014 until 09:00 on Mon, 24th Feb 2014

Rain affecting parts of southern Scotland, Cumbria and northwest Wales. will be heavy at times through the rest of Sunday and into Monday morning. Large totals will build up, particularly over hills. Southerly gales are likely at first, with gusts of 60 to 70 mph over coasts and hills, but these should begin to ease later on Sunday.

The public should be aware of the risk of flooding.

This warning is an update to the warning issued on Saturday to extend the end time to 0900 Monday and to extend the area further east across the Borders.
